RESULTS OF TUESDAY'S VOTING

County Treasurer and Poor Director Elected by Fusionists in County--Local School Board Republican--One Democrat Elected to Council--East Ward Judge Democratic

At Tuesday's election the majority of the Republican candidates for county offices were successful, the Fusionists securing the County Treasurer and one Poor Director in addition to one Commissioner and one Auditor for which the law provides.

The vote was light and especially so in some of the Democratic strongholds. This was largely due to dissatisfaction over two of the candidates for County Commissioner, who failed to comply with the conditions of the primary agreement, but other causes had their effect.

The Keystoneers made a magnificent showing in a number of districts as indicated by the table on this page, which is unofficial.

High Constable.
William Thomas, R. ... 116 92
Philip Mechtley, D. ... 97 117

BLANKENBURG ELECTED MAYOR

"Warhorse of Reform" Carried Quaker City.

Rudolph Blankenburg, the nominee of the Independents in Philadelphia, was elected Mayor over George H. Earle, Jr., the Republican candidate, who was backed by the Penrose machine, by a plurality of 4,797 votes.

J. A. Berkey Defeated
John A. Berkey, Republican candidate for Judge in Somerset County, was defeated by William H. Ruppel by 1,215 votes, while the remainder of the Republican county ticket was elected by majorities ranging from 6,000 to 7,000.

Massachusetts re-elected a Democratic Governor.

Cincinnati rebuked Taft by smashing the Cox machine, which had his endorsement.

Progressives elected majority of delegates to Ohio constitutional convention.

Socialists Win in Broad Top
A remarkable feature of Tuesday's election was the casting of 137 straight Socialist votes in Broad Top Township and the election of all their local officers except Constable.

One of the Republican candidates for School Director was William Lauder, who was one of the framers of the School Code and is a member of the state Board of Education.

Independent Mayor for Harrisburg
John K. Royal, candidate of the Independents was elected Mayor of Harrisburg.

JOHN FLETCHER
County Treasurer Elect.

Blair County
The election in Blair County resulted in the return of Hon. Thomas J. Baldrige, Republican, to the bench. The remainder of the Republican ticket was elected by pluralities ranging about 3,000, except County Treasurer, which office was secured by Rev. Moses R. Brumbaugh, Democrat, by a majority of about 1,000.

Democratic Victory in Kentucky

Site for Public Building
On Monday a board of viewers awarded $5,000 to Annie M. Hughes for a plot of ground which will be used as a portion of the site of the proposed federal building. The Hughes plot, 60 by 120 feet, adjoins the public square. Moses A. Points, who owns another piece of the property adjoining, previously accepted $7,000 for his holdings. The two properties make a site 120 feet each way. The government has appropriated $80,000 for the building.

$3.50 RECIPE FREE, FOR WEAK MEN

Send Name and Address Today—You Can Have It Free and Be Strong and Vigorous.

I have in my possession a prescription for nervous debility, lack of vigor, weakened manhood, failing memory and lame back, brought on by excesses, unnatural drains, or the follies of youth, that has cured so many worn and nervous men right in their own homes—without any additional help or medicine—that I think every man who wishes to regain his manly power and virility, quickly and quietly, should have a copy. So I have determined to send a copy of the prescription free of charge, in a plain, ordinary sealed envelope to any man who will write me for it.

This prescription comes from a physician who has made a special study of men and I am convinced it is the surest-acting combination for the cure of deficient manhood and vigor failure ever put together.

I think I owe it to my fellow man to send them a copy in confidence so that any man anywhere who is weak and discouraged with repeated failures may stop drugging himself with harmful patent medicines, secure what I believe is the quickest-acting restorative, upbuilding, SPOT-TOUCHING remedy ever devised, and so cure himself at home quietly and quickly. Just drop me a line like this: Dr. A. E. Robinson, 3584 Luck Building, Detroit, Mich., and I will send you a copy of this splendid recipe in a plain, ordinary envelope free of charge. A great many doctors would charge $3.00 to $5.00 for merely writing out a prescription like this—but I send it entirely free.

SAW-TOOTHED GRAIN BEETLE

Fumigating Will Get Rid of the Pest—Two Methods.

A very annoying insect has recently been found in large numbers infesting different brands of prepared breakfast foods sold in this state. When they are once introduced into the pantry they become a constant source of trouble to the housekeeper, and should be destroyed.

Breakfast foods should be examined and when found infested, fed to the pigs or returned to the dealer. Prof. Surface, State Zoologist, Harrisburg, Pa., gives good advice on methods of exterminating these pests, to a lady writing to him on this subject. His reply to her request for information is as follows:

"The insect which you send to us is called the Saw-toothed grain weevil. It feeds in grain, flours, meal, breakfast foods, etc. The possibilities are that it was introduced into your pantry in a package of infested breakfast food. Only recently I opened a package which contained thousands of them.

It is best to remove all the infested foods of this kind from the pantry, and even if they are only suspected, place them in another room until you have opportunity to learn whether or not they are really infested. If so, feed them to pigs or poultry, and get a clean stock of such goods. Take advantage of the opportunity to dust fresh insect powder thoroughly over the shelves and through the pantry, and close the room one-half hour. Then brush it out thoroughly, and burn the sweepings.

"You can get rid of these pests by fumigating with carbon bisulfide, which is a poisonous clear liquid with explosive or inflammable fumes, the same as those of benzine or gasoline. After removing the food products sprinkle it around over the shelves, where the insects have been, and later ventilate the room and brush out the insects and burn them. Be sure to keep fire away from it at all times.

"Owing to its very foul odor, which is indescribable and the danger from fire, I do not, as a rule, recommend this in households. As a last resort, you can kill these pests by fumigating with hydrocyanic acid gas, which does not have the objectionable feature of the carbon bisulfide herein mentioned, but it is worse in two regards; viz., it is more difficult and expensive to fumigate with this material, and the hydrocyanic acid gas is more quickly deadly to all living things, including human beings. Therefore, if inhaled during the process of fumigation, it is liable to prove immediately serious. I have known of many private dwellings, stores, mills and other buildings being successfully fumigated with this material, and, in fact, have used it many times myself, and have never known of a fatal or serious case resulting from it."

CAN'T CURE CATARRH

Stomach Dosing, Sprays and Douches Have All Failed.

There is only one way to cure catarrh. Reach the raw, tender, inflamed membrane that is infested with catarrh germs, and destroy the germs.

You can't reach the nooks and crevices with liquid preparations—there is only one way—breathe the antiseptic germ killing air of HYOMEI (pronounce it High-o-mei) directly over the infested parts. HYOMEI contains no opium, cocaine or other harmful drugs, it is made of Australian eucalyptus, thymol and other Listerian antiseptics. It is guaranteed to end the misery of catarrh, asthma, croup and bronchitis, or money back.

Ask F. W. Jordan about the HYOMEI outfit today, he sells it for only $1.00 and guarantees it.

RABBITS AND MICE INJURING TREES

Professor Surface Recommends Lime-Sulphur as a Preventive.

Much injury is annually caused by mice and rabbits which eat the bark from the trunks of young fruit trees in the orchards of the state during the time snow covers the ground in winter. The following letter from Prof. Surface, Economic Zoologist, to a correspondent, on this subject, may be found of use to others:

"Replying to your letter asking for information concerning the best wash to put on your trees to protect them from mice and rabbits, I can say that there is nothing better than the lime-sulphur solution, boiled with the sediment in it, and applied with a brush, or with a spray pump by removing the nozzle from the end of the extension rod, and forcing the liquid out in a jet directly over the trunk of the tree. For this purpose I prefer the old-fashioned 17-22-50 home boiled formula, because of the sediment that is thus left, and which becomes important for protection. By this formula I mean, boiling one hour, seventeen pounds of sulphur and twenty-two of lime, in enough water to boil it, and afterward adding water to make fifty gallons. This as a spray formula has been abandoned for the Cordley formula for making concentrated lime-sulphur solution.

The concentrated formula consists of boiling two pounds of finely divided sulphur of any commercial kind with one pound of good fresh quick lime of any kind, for one hour, in one gallon of water. This is to be strained and stored as long as desired, and when used, add seven times its bulk of water. The advantage of the new formula is the absence of sediment, and that it can be stored without crystallization.

"In treating your trees to prevent mice and rabbits you need the sediment present, but the old formula should be used at once after making it. With the new formula it can be stored as long as you wish.

"I proved three years ago that trees could be protected from borers, mice and rabbits by painting washing or spraying them twice per year, viz: the first of June and the first of December or January, with this material. If it should wash off the trunks of the trees, so that there will be evidence of mice or rabbits attacking them during the winter, make another application at once. In fact, almost any combination of lime and sulphur boiled together for a short time, applied to the trees, will prevent injury by mice and rabbits, and will destroy such insects and disease germs as it touches, and will not injure the trees.

"It is not necessary to add carbolic acid. I have tried this. The acid may injure the tree, although it does not always do so. It evaporates very quickly. I smelled the odor of it throughout my orchard as a very strong odor for two or three days, and then it was gone. We need something that is more permanent than this. Remember that for the tree borer it can be applied just before it lays its eggs, which is generally in June."

A GREAT DISCOVERY

Certain Ingredients That Really Promote Hair Growth when Properly Combined.

Resorcin is one of the most effective germ destroyers ever discovered by science, and in connection with Beta Naphthol, which is both germicidal and antiseptic, a combination is formed which destroys the germs which rob the hair of its natural nourishment, and also creates a clean, healthy condition of the scalp, which prevents the development of new germs.

Pilocarpin, although not a coloring matter or dye, is a well-known ingredient for restoring the hair to its natural color, when the loss of hair has been caused by a disease of the scalp.

These ingredients in proper combination, with alcohol added as a stimulant and for its well-defined nourishing properties, perfect perhaps the most effective remedy that is known for scalp and hair troubles.

We have a remedy which is chiefly composed of these ingredients, in combination with other extremely valuable medicinal agents. We guarantee it to positively cure dandruff and to grow hair, even though the scalp in spots is bare of hair. If there is any vitality left in the roots, it will positively cure baldness, or we will refund your money. If the scalp has a glazed, shiny appearance, it's an indication that baldness is permanent, but in other instances we believe baldness is curable.

We want every one troubled with scalp disease or loss of hair to try Rexall "93" Hair Tonic. If it does not cure dandruff and grow hair to the satisfaction of the user, we will without question or quibble return every cent paid us for it. We print this guarantee on every bottle. It has effected a positive cure in 93% of cases where put to a practical test. Rexall "93" Hair Tonic is entirely unlike, and we think, in every particular, better than anything else we know of for the purpose for which it is prescribed. We urge you to try this preparation at our entire risk. Certainly we know of no better guarantee to give you. Remember, you can obtain Rexall Remedies in Bedford only at our store—The Rexall Store. JUST PAWNED IT

Aged Colored Man Claims Right to Do as He Pleases With Registration Certificate.

H. R. Sarasohn was recently arrested in Lexington, Ky., on charge of having bought a registration certificate from George Ross, an aged negro in the employ of the Butner Produce Company.

Ross, whose certificate is said to have been taken from Sarasohn's pocket when he was arrested, was found by a reported in a saloon, and when accosted, the following interesting conversation took place:

Reporter Sees Ross

"What's your name?" asked the reporter as he stepped up to the negro, who had just had his drink and was turning to leave the saloon.

"Who, me? My name's Ross."

"George Ross?"

"Yes, sir. George Ross; that's me."

"Where have you been all night?"

"Who wants to know?"

"I do. You were not home after midnight. Where were you?"

"Now, look here, boss, if you is trying to find out something about that registration 'stificate business, you jess say so and I'll tell you all dey is to it and den you can do what you want with me. I done been arrested once last night about dis thing. I didn't sell my 'stificate to dat man, I jess pawned it to him, dat's what I done; jess pawned it; dat's the truth, boss."

"How did you happen to 'pawn' it?"

Why He Pawned Paper

"Well, it's dis way. I was in need of a little money; kinder hard up; hadn't paid my rent, and I jess took my 'stificate last night and went to the grocery and ast that man, Mr. Murphy, dey calls him, how much he would loan me on dat piece o' blue paper until Saturday week, de Saturday before de election. He said three dollars. I said all right and told him mo' so dat I was bound to have it back. He said all right and give me three dollars in silver. I started out de doah and a white man who was standing dah walked out behind me and said, 'I want's you,' at de same time throwing back his coat and showing me a badge on his voss. He said he was a Sheriff, but I never saw him before. It wasn't Mr. Dan Scott. I used to work on his farm and I knows him well. Iakwise he knows me well. The Sheriff asked me how much money I got from Mr. Murphy and I said three dollars. 'Give it to me,' said he, and I handed it to him. I haven't seen none of dat money since.

Took Him to May's Grocery

"Dis Sheriff walked me down the street and to Billy May's grocery and had a talk with another man and dey done some telephoning and den they took me in a automobile to Cheap-side and finally brought me back to Billy May's and turned me loose. All de time dey wuz trying to git me to say that I had sold my 'stificate to Murphy and that Murphy had asked me to sell it to him. After they turned me loose I got word to come to my sick brother in Taylortown and I went and set up wid him all night and I'm jess now coming down to my work at Mr. Butner's.

"If I has done anything agin de law I don't know it. That 'stificate is my 'stificate. It belongs to me, jess as much as my coat and my bed belongs to me. If I want to go and pawn my coat or my bed it ain't agin de law fer me to do it. If I want to pawn my 'stificate it ain't agin de law fer me to do it. The law says that if I is a legal citizen I kin vote, but dat ef I want to vote I must register and I must have a 'stificate da' I's registered before I can vote. The law don't say dat I must vote—dey ain't no MUST about it—so if I pawn my 'stificate and I ain't lucky enough to git it out o' pawn before 'lection day I loses my vote. Dat's all dey is to it and I ain't broke no law.

"I's told you all de truth and you can arrest me or do whatever you wants to do with me."

"What would you suggest that I do with you?" said the reporter, as the joke began to reach the amusing stage.

"Stake me to a dime to git some coffee and rolls. Hit's mighty frosty dis mawnin' and dat Sheriff done gone off wid my three dollars."

Ross got the dime and went his way. The reporter went to bed.

On the Goodnight Cattle Trail

To lie in a narrow wooden box, with icy spray spattering on your face and hands, is one of the essentials in shooting geese on the Atlantic Coast, as vividly described in the November Sports Afield. On the Goodnight Cattle Trail tells how a party of cowboys, driving a herd of long horns northward through Colorado, was set upon by a band of marauding Utes. A Nemesis of the hills (a story of the Kentucky mountains); the continuation of Captain Miller's stirring experiences while serving with the Texas Rangers; Lost in the Minnesota North Woods; Trout Fishing in the White Mountains; A Thanksgiving Quail Hunt; With Pack Mule and Saddle in Honduras, together with two capital papers on prairie chicken and ruffed grouse shooting, serve to complete a decidedly interesting issue. Your newsdealer can supply you; if not, send 15 cents to Sports Afield, 542 South Dearborn Street, Chicago, Ill.

The picture being in eight colors, the tones of the original are faithfully reproduced.

RED CEDAR FOR BUILDINGS

Some of This Excellent Material Is Estimated to Be Nearly Four Thousand Years Old.

It will surprise many to know that they have in their homes material estimated to be 4,000 years old. If the shingles or interior finish is red cedar or if you have a red cedar chest it is possible that the wood antedates the history of this country by thousands of years, says the Cleveland Leader.

A Cleveland man is credited with bringing the first red cedar into this section. W. A. Geist, on a western trip several years ago, was attracted by the red cedar forests at Port Angelus, Wash. He established a mill there and began shipping the cedar to the eastern market. Formerly the southern cedar was used in great quantities, but it is the claim of Mr. Geist that the product from the Pacific coast is growing in favor and the demand for it is increasing.

It is a most durable wood and its use in a home guarantees that moths and other troublesome insects will not enter. It is used for washcoating, mantels, cupboards, cabinets and especially for chests in which to store furs and clothing. Mr. Geist exhibits a quantity of red cedar cut from a tree he estimates to be at least 3700 years of age. Three large cedars were found growing from a fallen log which was five and one-half feet in diameter. The largest of the three trees growing from the fallen tree was ten and one-half feet in diameter. By counting the rings in both trees indicates that the fallen tree, still sound, is nearing its four thousandth birthday.

Mr. Geist is an expert upon red cedar and goes in for the history of the wonderful trees of Washington and other coast states as a biographer would the data upon the life of some famous man. He surrounds a bolt of shingle cedar with an interesting story, which goes back to the misty ages and something like reverence grows within the listener for this venerable work of nature.

Unquestionably the red cedar is the oldest material used in the construction of the home and few materials will outwear it, it being nearly indestructible except by fire.

Crus ed by a Caddie.

"It is not always safe to fish for compliments," says a Washington man, who travels quite a bit, "and I recently learned a lesson in this regard from a caddie attached to a golf club near this town.

"I was gr g round the links one afternoon and making a dreadful exhibition of myself. I did not, however, know that my caddie was fully aware of this, as he seemed so blissfully unconscious that anything was wrong. He was a nice, freckled little Irishman, ar I took quite a fancy to him, especially as never a hint came from him that I was doing badly. At the end of the round, in the hope of a 'jolly' from the lad, I ventured to observe:

"I've been traveling for the last two months, and am dreadfully out of practice. That's why I'm in such bad form today."

"To which the caddie calmly replied: "Oh, then ye've played before, sir!"

A Cooking Feat in the Air.

To cook a potato pie at the top of a chimney three hundred feet high, by means of the heat generated in the fires below would seem an impossible task, yet such a feat was on one occasion accomplished by John Faulkner, a famous Lancashire steepeljack.

The incident was the outcome of a wager between Faulkner and the manager of a Manchester gas works, who doubted John's statement regarding the excessive heat.

A large iron kettle was procured, and this, being filled with necessary ingredients—sixty-six pounds in weight—was hoisted to the summit of the huge chimney stack. Faulkner placed the receptacle on the outer and coolest side of the brickwork, but despite this, the contents were found to be thoroughly cooked in one hour and twenty minutes, or ten minutes less than the stipulated time.

Faulkner won his wager and the pie, which, it is said, was slightly burned at the bottom, was afterwards distributed among the poor of the district—Byrstander.

An Innovation in Oil Heaters

The Perfection Smokeless Oil Heater, with its drums enameled in turquoise, is an ornament to any room, whether in the country or city home.

No home is quite complete without a Perfection Oil Heater. It is a necessity in the fall and spring, when it is too warm to start the regular heating apparatus, and too cool to be without heat. In the midst of winter it is often convenient as an auxiliary heater, as there are always some cold corners in a house.

The enameled heater always presents a nice appearance, as the enamel will not tarnish or burn off. It is not an "enamel paint," but it is the same as the enamel of your cooking utensils.

The Perfection is the most reliable and convenient portable heating device you can find. An automatically-locking flame spreader prevents turning the wick high enough to smoke.

Dealers everywhere. Ask yours to show you the Perfection Heater enameled; or write for descriptive circular to any agency of A Contemptible Trick.

Showing That There Are More Ways Than One of Interfering With a Woman's Intentions.

By F. A. MITCHEL.

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

Left an orphan when I was a very little girl, I was brought up by a maiden aunt, a woman of considerable brain and will power. I had hardly been settled in her house before she laid out a course for me to pursue.

"I shall give you a good education," she said, "and an education is a foundation on which a woman may build a career as well as a man. I'm not going to educate you that you may occupy a subordinate position in some man's office; not going to make a stenographer of you to take down some man's dictation—no man ever dictated to me. I shall give you a profession. But when you have been graduated I shall expect you to practice. It is not my intention to spend money on you to be thrown away. I don't propose that after giving you a profession some man shall come along, talk a lot of nonsense to you and render all I have spent on you abortive. If a woman is going to be a lawyer or a doctor she must begin by putting all notions of love and marriage out of her head."

Considering that my aunt made this announcement to me when I was but twelve years old, it is not to be expected that it made any other impression on me than that I was to follow the path she laid down for me. It evidently did not occur to her that I was rather young to agree when grown to place myself in opposition to nature's laws. Nevertheless, she accepted my promise that I would repay her kindness in educating me by making myself the old maid she was herself and spend my life listening to people tell about their aches and pains instead of hearing the prattle of my own children.

Nevertheless, my aunt was a good woman despite her crankiness. She took admirable care of me, and when I became old enough to choose a profession I selected medicine. My aunt died shortly after I had received my diploma and left me a legacy sufficient to give me a start in my profession. The last thing she said to me was: "Remember your promise. You will be sorely tempted because you are very good looking. Men will try to draw you away from the path of duty, but you must not listen to them. What they will want of you is to make you a slave. Be constantly on your guard."

As to the temptation, my aunt was right. My being thrown into a field of labor where I met many men, some of whom were intelligent and attractive, was probably the cause of my receiving a number of proposals. But I set myself resolutely to carry out my aunt's intentions regarding me, feeling bound in honor to do so. I refused all my suitors, devoting myself exclusively to my practice. I found it impossible to keep the fact that I was pledged to celibacy from being known, and I believe that for this reason I was especially sought in marriage. Nothing is so desirable as that which is impossible to obtain.

I practiced two years and resisted all temptations to marry. One day an old lady came to see me and begged that I would make a diagnosis of a trouble that was afflicting her son. She said she believed there was something on her son's mind that he would not confide to his medical attendant. A man, she said, would be more likely to give his confidence in certain matters to a woman than one of his own sex. The invalid had been a trifle in love affairs, and she was not sure but that he had been caught in his own trap. If she could be sure of this she might possibly find a remedy.

There was something winning in the old lady's solicitude lest her boy might be getting his just deserts. I was amused at the absurdity of a man having to call in a woman physician to cure him of a possible love malady. I did not attend men patients as a rule, partly because I had cured one man and he had given me his heart in addition to my fee. But since this dear old lady's invalid son was suspected to be already in love, even to the breaking down of his health, I saw no reason why I should not oblige her. So I promised to at least make one visit.

I found a fine looking young fellow some twenty-eight years old, six feet high and muscular. As I entered the room where he was lounging he looked up at me with a captivating smile that he had evidently inherited from his mother. There was an unconscious strength about him that in a man is especially attractive to a woman. I did not wonder that he had fallen into gallantry and could not but have some sympathy for him that he was suffering the penalty. His mother with drew and I began to question him professionally, though I only asked him how he felt and to what cause he attributed his ailment; then I said to him frankly:

"You are not ill; you think you are."
"I know it."
"I can't at present determine whether your trouble is mental or nervous. If there is anything on your mind you had better tell me. I can do nothing for you till I know the cause of your malady."

"I am only too glad to make a confidant of you, doctor. I am in love."

"In that case you must be your own physician. I can do nothing for you."

"But suppose this love is breaking me down."

"Nonsense."

"I told my mother that you would take that view of the case. My life is worth nothing to me or any one else except my mother. I implore you to try to do something for me for her sake."

"I will. My prescription is plenty of outdoor exercise and mental occupation. Whenever the image of this unattainable girl comes up before you drive it out."

"I can't."

"There is no such word as can't." I arose to go.

"Will you come again?" he asked ruefully.

There was something both amusing and fascinating in this great hulk of a man clinging to me to save him from himself. Nevertheless, I knew of no antidote for love and had no mind to waste my time dancing attendance on a man whose only ailment was his devotion to some girl who didn't happen to fancy him. But I was obliged to confess to myself that there was something as attractive as ludicrous in it. The fond mother, who had probably been listening, at this point came in and said:

"Of course the doctor will come again. She will not leave you to suffer."

"Not if I can be of service."

As I went out the patient followed me with his handsome, melancholy eyes, full of a longing that I could have understood had I been the girl who was torturing him. But under the circumstances it was very puzzling. Before leaving I questioned his mother with a view of determining if there was any hereditary cause that would account for his condition, but she said all her ancestors on both sides had been healthy in mind and body.

I was at the time much interested in mental effects upon the body. I was sure that this young man's unrequited love had brought him into one of those conditions that are so puzzling to physicians. I told his mother this and advised her to attempt a removal of the fundamental cause. When she asked me how to do this I suggested throwing her son and some fascinating woman, other than the one he loved, together. He would likely transfer his love and this would effect a cure. She promised to think about it, but seemed to consider it rather an impracticable expedient.

A week later she called at my office, evidently very much troubled. She said her son was no better; indeed, if there had been any change since my visit it was for the worse.

"I have thought of your plan, doctor," she said, "of substituting another love, but I know of no one who I believe would be able to draw my son away from his infatuation. I named every girl of his acquaintance to him, asking if there was one he would like to have visit him, and he refused to see any of them. 'I wouldn't mind seeing my doctor,' he said, 'as often as she will call.'"

And what did the poor old mother do, with tears in her eyes, but beg me to make an attempt to substitute myself in her son's affections for the woman he loved. I argued that even if successful I would only be replacing one cause by a similar one. She declared that instead the infatuation would be broken and her son would recover his health.

There was a professional problem involved—a problem as to the effect of mental causes of physical ailments. This and the mother's pleadings prevailed. I would cure the young man if I could, and after his cure—well, after that he must get on as best he could without me.

I visited him at intervals. I played no coquettish pranks upon him. I simply attempted to divert his mind by being as agreeable to him as I could. I chose those subjects for chat in which he was interested and found him in certain lines intellectually my superior. After every call I was rewarded for my pains by his dotting mother, who assured me that all was going well and her son was steadily improving. Of course I looked forward with misgivings to the day when my patient would be cured of one love to be tortured by another, but possibly a third or a fourth might so dilute the poison that the physical effect would be neutralized.

A result occurred that I had not calculated upon. While I was winning my patient's love he was winning mine. I awakened finally to the fact that my pledge to my aunt must either be broken or I would become some doctor's patient for the same disease of which I had cured my own.

Nevertheless I determined not to yield. I would not find a substitute, as I had recommended to him, but I would cease to see him. But he would not cease to see me. He followed me relentlessly. I fought him for ten months, then surrendered.

On the day my husband and I returned from our wedding trip he gave me evidence of the value of my aunt's warning.

"Sweetheart," he said, "do you know that the illness which brought us together was all a put up job on your part?"

"What do you mean?" I exclaimed, opening my eyes.

"One day I heard some sawbones talking about you and your pledge to devote yourself to your profession and not to marry."

"Well?"

"You know the rest." As soon as I could get my breath I hissed, "It was a mean, contemptible—"

A kiss stopped the rest.

WELCOME WORDS TO WOMEN

Women who suffer with disorders peculiar to their sex should write to Dr. Pierce and receive free the advice of a physician of over 40 years' experience—a skilled and successful specialist in the diseases of women. Every letter of this sort has the most careful consideration and is regarded as sacredly confidential. Many sensitively modest women write fully to Dr. Pierce what they would shrink from telling to their local physician. The local physician is pretty sure to say that he cannot do anything without "an examination." Dr. Pierce holds that these distasteful examinations are generally needless, and that no woman, except in rare cases, should submit to them.

Dr. Pierce's treatment will cure you right in the privacy of your own home. His "Favorite Prescription" has cured hundreds of thousands, some of them the worst of cases.

It is the only medicine of its kind that is the product of a regularly graduated physician. The only one good enough that its makers dare to print its every ingredient on its outside wrapper. There's no secrecy. It will bear examination. No alcohol and no habit-forming drugs are found in it. Some unscrupulous medicine dealers may offer you a substitute. Don't take it. Don't trifle with your health. Write to World's Dispensary Medical Association, Dr. R. V. Pierce, President, Buffalo, N. Y.,—take the advice received and be well.

BROWNING WAS NOT A SNOB

When a Cook Came to See Some Pictures He Offered Her His Arm.

A trivial anecdote occurs to me which has nothing to do with the "Countesses" who were supposed to absorb Mr. Browning overmuch. It appeared that on one occasion Mr. Browning's son had hired a room in a neighboring house in which to exhibit his pictures. In the temporary absence of the artist, Mr. Browning was doing the honors, the room being half filled with fashionable friends. Mr. Browning was standing near the door when a visitor, unannounced, made her appearance; he immediately shook hands with the stranger, or tried to do so, when she exclaimed:

"Oh, I beg your pardon, sir, I'm the cook. Mr. Barrett asked me to come and see his pictures." "And I am very glad to see you," said Mr. Browning, with ready courtesy. "Take my arm and I will show you around."

FRANK A. PERDEW

Elected District Attorney of Allegany County, Maryland.

Cumberland, November 8.—Frank A. Perdeu, Democrat, defeated David A. Robb, Republican, yesterday in Allegany County for State's Attorney by over 100 votes. The county is normally 1,200 Republican.

Mr. Perdeu is a son of the late Elijah Perdeu of Bean's Cove, Bedford County. He was down ever since the primaries with typhoid fever and his friends got busy and showed him what they could do for him. His former Bedford County friends were especially active, including the writer.

Only two other Democrats were elected in the county besides two of the county road directors for which the law provides. Each dominant party elects two.

One of the successful Democrats was G. A. Reinhard, who defeated John Wellington, son of Ex-Senator Wellington, for County Treasurer by 27 votes. The Democrats also elected one County Commissioner, Walter Parker. The Republicans have elected Goldsboro for Governor by about 2,500. He is the second Republican Governor ever elected in the state, the other being the late Lloyd Lowndes.

A $500 property qualification intended to disfranchise negroes was snowed under. Counting is slow.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

The Rev. Irl R. Hicks 1912 Almanac

Before the great Drouth of 1901; the Hicks Almanac gave timely warning. For over two years prior to 1911, the Hicks Almanac again sounded a warning of drouth danger. And so for forty years this same friend of all the people has steadfastly refused the offers of speculators and continued to warn the public of the coming dangers of storm and weather. As they should have done, the people have nobly stood by Professor Hicks, their faithful public servant, who has grown old in their service. Send only one dollar to Word and Works Publishing Company, 3401 Franklin Avenue, St. Louis, Mo., and get his Magazine and Almanac both for one year. The Almanac alone, a fine book of 150 pages, is only 35c by mail. Let everybody respond and receive the warnings of our National Seer for the coming year.

HECKERMAN LETTER

A Visit to the Town Near Which Abraham Lincoln Was Born.

Hodgenville, Ky., Nov. 6, 1911. Hodgenville is in Larue County, Kentucky. It is a town of 1,200 or 1,500 people. The old court house stands in the middle of the square, and has a hall straight through it with a town pump at each door. This town is hard to get to, and I don't often come out, as it takes nearly a full day to do so, and there is but one jobber here and the profits I get on his purchases do not permit me to waste the time.

Abraham Lincoln was born on a farm near this town; 'tis known as "The Lincoln Farm." It has been purchased by popular subscriptions, and in the same way a handsome memorial temple has been erected, holding as in the Ark of the Covenant, the humble log cabin in which Abraham Lincoln was born. This has been paid by popular subscription to the Lincoln Farm Association. This building will be dedicated on Thursday, November 9. The President of the United States and many other distinguished guests will be present and take part in these exercises. Governor Wilson of Kentucky has issued a proclamation and sent greetings to all the people of Kentucky and to the sister states, earnestly inviting them to be present and take part in the events of the day.

On Wednesday, November 8, at Frankfort, Ky., the great statue of Abraham Lincoln, which has been presented to the people of Kentucky by Breckenridge Speed of Louisville, will be unveiled in the rotunda of the new capitol at 2 p. m. with appropriate ceremonies. This is said to be one of the nicest statues ever made, a splendid gift to all of our people for all time. Robert Lincoln, the only surviving member of the Lincoln family, has promised to be present at these services. Dad is ten days ahead of the procession and can't find it convenient to attend.

I note that the Kentucky Department of Agriculture is sending a special agricultural train through the state for the purpose of enlightening the farmers as to the great advantage in scientific farming. This train consists of three exhibit cars containing specimens of farm products and machinery from the Kentucky College of Agriculture. In addition there is a palace stock car and a flat car, carrying fine animals for judging purposes. There are also exhibits from the State Board of Health and State Board of Education. There are also attached to the train three coaches in which lectures are given wherever they stop, on Health, Agriculture and kindred topics. This mode of imparting knowledge to the farmers and others, who attend these meetings, is much better than the old way of having County Farmers' Institutes which, as a rule, are attended only by a few farmers, sandwiched in with a lot of village loafers, or other persons drawn to the meeting place more by idle curiosity than from any other motive. I am told that it is an exceptional case where a Farmer's County Institute is well attended. To my notion lectures and discussions on any topic, more especially on farming topics, continue all night or as long as the farmer can be induced to listen to or take part in them. A Farmers' Institute on wheels, with accompanying exhibits and demonstrations, is much more preferred than the old style county institutes. These schools on wheels have already done wonders.

The crop conditions throughout this state are about the average, so the reports say. They are now digging the second crop of Irish potatoes, which is much better than the first, or early crop, which in many places did not bring forth as much as was planted. 'Tis hard to conceive any limit to the possibilities of this state in an agricultural line. Much of her fertile land is as yet undeveloped and many of her farmers are away behind in scientific farming.

All the good people of Kentucky will have reason to be thankful this year. The farmers will have corn to sell and keep, enough tobacco to supply the greater part of the world, and almost everything for home consumption, all of which should go far toward making a glad Thanksgiving and a merry Christmas.

Lunch is now being served in the dining room of the Hayes Hotel and I'll skip.

Please send me The Gazette to Arlington Hotel, Memphis, Tenn., and oblige Yours truly,

M. P. Heckerman.

The Tenderfoot

By THOMAS J. HUNTER

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

Ed Thatcher was a tenderfoot in the wild and woolly west. He went out there after being told by the president of an eastern college he had been attending that he needn't remain at the university any longer. Indeed, it would have been hardly worth his while to do so, since he would have been obliged to study during several vacations in order to make up "conditions," and before he could catch up his classmates would have been graduated and started in their careers. The cause of Ed's failure at college was athletics. He stood at the top in baseball, football, fencing, boxing, running and the high jump; in his studies he stood at the bottom.

Not liking to face his father, whom he had bitterly disappointed, upon his dismissal from college he buried his remorse in the worst part of the wild west. He did not seem on his arrival to count for any more in the new country than he did in the old. In the former, it is true, education was not considered of much value, the only accomplishment prized being an ability to shoot quick and straight. Ed did not even show that he was strong. His loose clothes covered his steel muscles, and he was rather thin in the face.

He was not in a good humor when he reached his new home. His failure in the east had, temporarily at least, soured his disposition. He went into a saloon to buy a cigar with which to solace himself. Half a dozen men were at the bar, and one of them named Wheeler, seeing a tenderfoot approach, turned to him and said:

"Betsy, have a drink."

"Thank you very much," said Thatcher. "I never drink. That's about the only virtue I have."

"Waal, we'll soon take that out of you here. We haven't got nary virtue in these parts. Come, step up and nominate yer likker."

"No liquor for me."

The man seized Ed roughly by the arms and gave him a jerk toward the bar.

One second later and there was a tableau. Wheeler was sprawling on the floor at the other end of the room, while the others present—Ed excepted—were wondering how he got there. It couldn't have been lightning, for they had heard no thunder, only a "biff." The tenderfoot had struck so quick they hadn't realized that he had had anything to do with the matter. Rising, Wheeler drew a revolver from his hip, but one of the men present happened to be between him and Thatcher, which occasioned delay. By this time the spectators realized what had happened and were so struck with admiration at this kind of warfare—entirely new to them—that several of them took Wheeler by the arms and forced him to keep the peace.

"Air you armed, stranger?" one of them asked Ed.

"No."

"Well, then you're the biggest fool in this territory."

"I prefer to protect myself with my fists."

There was a shout of laughter at this announcement.

"There's some fun in this," remarked one of the party. "Let's have one of them tenderfoot fights. Come, Wheeler, give me your weapon and have it out with the tenderfoot in his own way."

Wheeler was so mad that he only wanted to get at the tenderfoot, and, since the crowd objected to his putting a bullet in him, he surrendered his revolver and made a rush for Thatcher, striking him with his big bony fist at the same time. Ed was not in front of him when he reached the place where he had been, and Wheeler's fist struck a wooden wall. Then Ed seized his antagonist from behind and threw him over his shoulder. Wheeler fell on his back. It was getting up when Ed knocked him down again; then Ed withdrew to the other end of the room, giving his enemy a chance to rise.

It was evident that this was a case of a cat playing with a mouse before devouring it. Every time Ed knocked Wheeler down or threw him down or got between his legs and toppled him over the crowd suffered.

"Keep it up!" they shouted when the tenderfoot asked his opponent if he had had enough. "It's the best show we ever seen!"

But when Ed saw that he was forcing an exhibition for the spectators he finished the contest by a blow under the jaw that felled his man, and it was evident by the way Wheeler arose that the contest was ended.

The crowd gathered around the victor.

"Stranger," said the man who suggested the fight, "you kin go around yere without a gun all you like. Ef any man draws on you there's plenty o' other guns'll take keer o' you. An' you needn't drink, neither."

Wheeler made no attempt to renew the fight. On the contrary, he admired the manner in which the tenderfoot had downed him and staggered toward Ed with outstretched hand. The tenderfoot had the good sense to bury the hatchet, and the man he thrashed has since been his ardent friend and admirer.

That was Ed Thatcher's introduction among a people who were at heart much as other people, but who had been modified by being their own defenders instead of being protected by the law. The tenderfoot is now the governor of the territory.

WHY TREES FAIL TO BEAR

There May Be Two Causes—Certain Fertilizers Suggested.

A fruit grower from West Virginia writes to Prof. H. A. Surface, Economic Zoologist of the State Department of Agriculture, desiring to know the cause of the failure of his apple trees to bear fruit. The zoologist replies as follows:

"Replying to your recent letter asking why your large Northern Spy trees do not bear fruit, I beg to say that there may be one or two or more causes of this. The ground may be too rich or fertile for the trees to bear fruit abundantly. On very fertile soil they are liable to grow vigorous, and will not stop their growth to bear heavily.

"Another is, that this variety is not so liable to bear heavily as do certain others. I would recommend that you prune the trees rather severely. Of course, cutting out the upper branches rather than the lower, so as to form low-headed, open-topped trees. Spray when the buds are swelling with the boiled lime-sulphur solution, and again after the flowers have dropped, with the dilute lime-sulphur solution, with about two pounds of arsenate of lead in each fifty gallons of the solution.

"If the ground appears to be rather fertile, it is not advisable to add more nitrogen fertility. Some wood ashes or other form of potash fertilizer, and also some phosphoric acid in the form of ground bone, or Thomas Phosphate slag, or ground Carolina rock will prove valuable. About ten pounds of the potash fertilizer and about the same of the phosphate fertilizer scattered around each tree a little farther than the branches extend, may prove very useful."

Lesson VII.—Fourth Quarter, For Nov. 12, 1911.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Dan. v, 17-30. Memory Verses, 25-28—Golden Text, Eccles. xii, 14—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

We are glad to have another lesson in Daniel, but it may be so long before we return to this book that it may be wise to glance at the book as a whole and outline its contents. It is the book of the times of the gentiles until the time of the kingdom shall come when Daniel's city and people shall have their transgressions blotted out and shall enjoy the everlasting righteousness of chapter ix, 24. Any one can make an outline to suit himself, but the following, by chapters, may suggest a better one. I. Daniel's purpose of heart. II. The stone kingdom to fill the earth. III. The image worship, or the furnace. IV. The proud humiliated. V. The judgment on the blasphemers. VI. The triumph of God over His enemies. VII. The everlasting kingdom (parallel with chapter ii). VIII. Kingdoms friendly to Daniel's people. IX. Daniel's prayer and Gabriel's prediction of the seventy-sevens. X. Gabriel's second visit to Daniel. XI. Antichrist and his overthrow. XII. The kingdom to follow the resurrection of the just and the great tribulation. From even such an outline as this we see that the portion assigned for today's lesson is just the story of a sample leader of the devil's followers, whose end is surely foretold in Ps. ix, 17; Matt. xxv, 41. It is part of the great kingdom story of the book and must be considered in that connection as well as in its personal relation to individuals. It is the record of a drunken revel with which God interfered suddenly. It was a great gathering of great people in the eyes of the world, and doubtless those invited felt as much honored as Haman did (Est. v, 5) when invited to the banquet of Queen Esther. The golden and silver vessels which had been taken from the temple of the Lord at Jerusalem were used as common drinking vessels, and they praised all gods except the living and true God.

In the midst of their drunken revelry a very strange and startling thing happens, for the fingers of a man's hand are seen writing words upon the plaster of the wall of the king's palace, and the king saw the part of the hand that wrote (verse 5). The king is filled with trembling and dismay, and all his wise men are called to interpret the words, but they could not read the writing (verse 8). This is the third time in this book that the wisdom of this world failed to understand the things of God (ii, 10; v, 27). How true it is that "the things of God knoweth no man, but the spirit of God" (I Cor. ii, 10). All the wisdom of this world is utterly at fault concerning things heavenly. The opinions and surmises of people are not worth the breath that utters them when they venture upon the things of God. There are unseen agents all about us, and while the hand of the Lord is against His enemies it is upon all them for good that seek Him (Ez. viii, 22).

The queen hears of the unusual and startling event, and, coming into the banquet house and seeing the king greatly troubled and his lords astonished and the wise men helpless, she remembered Daniel and his marvelous skill in interpreting hard things in the days of Nebuchadnezzar, and she said, "Let Daniel be called and he will show the interpretation" (verse 10-12). When Daniel came into the presence of the king he was told of the inability of all the wise men to interpret the writing and was offered a great reward or great rewards if he would do it (verses 13-16). Disdaining the proffered rewards, Daniel said, "Yet I will read the writing unto the king and make known to him the interpretation" (verse 17). We think of Abraham's rejection of the offer of the king of Sodom, of Elisha's rejection of Naaman's gifts and of Peter's remark that the things of God cannot be purchased with money. The refusal of the man of God to go how with Jeroboam or accept his gift (I Kings xiii) is also on the same line. Daniel then reminded the king of what the most high God had done for his father and how He had humbled him and added fearlessly and searchingly, "Thou hast not humbled thine heart though thou knowest all this, but hast lifted up thyself against the Lord of heaven. * * * and the God in whose hand thy breath is and whose are all thy ways hast thou not glorified" (verses 22, 23). What a searching word for multitudes of people! The time of all earthly kingdoms is fixed. Only the kingdom of God is eternal. The Lord is a God of knowledge, and by His actions are weighed our thoughts and actions weighed, and the life story in a mortal body will be finished some day. However much riches and honor may have been obtained, the question comes, "Thy whose shall those things be?" As to the condition of those who rebel against God, let the words of the Lord Jesus in Luke xvi, 23; Mark ix, 43, tell all who desire to know. See also Rev. xx, 15.

Babylon may perish, but Daniel and all who, like him, do the will of God shall continue and abide forever. What shall it profit though a man gain the world and all its pleasure if his soul is not saved?

AVOID HARSH DRUGS

Many Cathartics Tend to Cause Injury to the Bowels.

If you are subject to constipation, you should avoid strong drugs and cathartics. They only give temporary relief and their reaction is harmful and sometimes more annoying than constipation. They in no way effect a cure and their tendency is to weaken the already weak organs with which they come in contact.

We honestly believe that we have the best constipation treatment ever devised. Our faith in it is so strong that we sell it on the positive guarantee that it shall not cost the user a cent if it does not give entire satisfaction and completely remedy constipation. This preparation is called Rexall Orderly. These are prompt, soothing, and most effective in action. They are made of a recent chemical discovery. Their principal ingredient is odorless, tasteless, and colorless. Combined with other well-known ingredients, long established for their usefulness in the treatment of constipation, it forms a tablet which is eaten just like candy. They may be taken at any time, either day or night, without fear of their causing any inconvenience whatever. They do not gripe, purge, nor cause nausea. They act without causing any pain or excessive looseness of the bowels. They are ideal for children, weak, delicate persons, and aged people, as well as for the most hearty person.

They come in three size packages, 12 tablets, 10 cents; 36 tablets, 25 cents; 80 tablets, 50 cents. Remember, you can obtain them only at our store—The Rexall Store. F. W. Jordan.

MAGAZINE OF MAINE INTACT

Mine Theory Borne Out as Work of Uncovering Wreck Advances.

The last stages of the work of uncovering and examining the wreck of the Maine are now advancing with great rapidity. During the coming weeks it is expected that the exploration of the bottom and sides of the ship in the immediate vicinity of the explosion will be completed sufficiently to enable the Engineer Board to give the required six days' notice to the Board of Inspection at Washington that everything is ready for the final inspection of the wreck.

All indications continue to strongly confirm the findings of the Sampson Board of Inquiry that the destruction of the Maine was due to an exterior explosion.

Many unexploded 10-inch shells were found last Saturday in the shell room, which is still buried deep in the mud. The work of constructing the bulkhead to make water tight the comparatively uninjured after half of the ship is well under way, but probably will not be completed for a month.

Only a small amount of excavation is now necessary to permit a complete interior examination of the bow section, but the principal interest attaches to the explosion of the bottom and sides in the immediate vicinity of the forward magazines.

J. E. Parker, 2021 No. 10th St., Ft. Smith, Ark., says that he had taken many kinds of kidney medicine, but did not get better until he took Foley Kidney Pills. No matter how long you have had kidney trouble, you will find quick and permanent benefit by the use of Foley Kidney Pills. Start taking them now. Ed. D. Heckerman.

How To Find Out.

Fill a bottle or common glass with your water and let it stand twenty-four hours; a brick dust sediment, or settling, stringy or milky appearance often indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys; too frequent desire to pass it or pain in the back are also symptoms that tell you the kidneys and bladder are out of order and need attention.

King Corn.

Corn, the gift of the new world to the old, is the king of grains. Each year some new use is found for it. Even after everything, seemingly, has been extracted from it there is left a valuable residuum known as corn oil cake, which is sold here and abroad and is used in the fattening of sheep and other animals. Nearly 60,000,000 pounds of this material are annually shipped to Great Britain and Germany and there used by farmers, who find it cheaper than materials of a similar nature which they can grow at home.

CRYING FOR HELP

Lots of it in Bedford But Daily Growing Less.

The kidneys cry for help. Not an organ in the whole body so delicately constructed. Not one so important to health. The kidneys are the filters of the blood.

When they fail the blood becomes foul and poisonous.

There can be no health where there is poisoned blood.

Backache is one of the first indications of kidney trouble.

It is the kidneys' cry for help. Heed it.

Doan's Kidney Pills are what is wanted.

Are just what overworked kidneys need.

They strengthen and invigorate the kidneys; help them to do their work; never fail to cure any case of kidney disease.

Otto Henschke, First Ave., Hyndman, Pa., says: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills on several occasions for lame back and other kidney disorders and they have never failed to give me relief. In October 1907, my wife publicly recommended Doan's Kidney Pills in my behalf and at this time I am pleased to confirm that statement. This preparation is the best one I ever took for kidney disorders."

Hunters Saw the Comet Anyhow

A party of hunters composed of Dr. W. F. Enfield, Dr. L. D. Blackwelder, Ira J. Powell, William Barclay, of Bedford, Pa.; C. W. Thompson of Ohio, and Messrs. John A. McCabe, Hice R. Laughlin and Charles E. Flannagan, of Grafton, who have been camping and hunting in the wilds of Randolph County, in the Cheat Mountains, have returned home. The party has been out a week. The hunters went to the headwaters of the Cheat River, in Randolph County, and there, about 15 miles south of Huttonsville, they built a cabin of logs and brush, and went on the hunt of deer and bear. The party found one deer trail and two bear trails, which they followed for some distance, but on account of the frost the leaves fell so fast and covered the ground through the woods, that it was impossible to keep the trails. They had good luck in killing squirrels, birds and other small game, but secured nothing large. The party had a splendid view of the Brooks comet which appeared in the southwest about 5 o'clock in the morning, and it is described as very beautiful and nearly as bright as the recent Halley comet. On account of the smoke and mists here the comet is obscure.—Cumberland, Md., News.

Mr. Manton's Methods

By Claudine Sisson

(Copyright, 1911, by Associated Literary Press.)

Life was very easy for Gordon Manton, bachelor. He had the fortune left by an aunt—he had very few worries—he was a bachelor with no thought of marriage—he had no lads to keep him awake at night.

Mr. Manton could have spared the money to build three or four free libraries, but he didn't build them. In a vague way he realized that the world ought to be made better, but he knew that it was a sure thing the first man he reproved for profanity would hit him on the jaw. The poor suffered for ice in summer and for coal in winter; but the rich suffered from imposters, thieves and burglars the year round, and that appeared to be an offset.

He had only to glance over his morning paper, to see that this was a very wicked world. It ought to be so, however, to furnish a contrast to Heaven. If the world were good enough then what would become of the arguments of priests and ministers?

One summer afternoon Mr. Manton lay down on the lounge for a nap. He knew that thousands of the men around him couldn't indulge in this luxury and earn their bread at the same time, but in a sleepy way he reflected that those thousands had their glasses of beer every night, while he positively disliked the liquid. He had slept for an hour when he quietly awoke to find an intruder in his room. It was a ragged girl of fifteen. She was down on her knees rifling a bureau.

"If you knocked or rang I didn't hear you," he said as he sat up.

The girl rose up and looked him in the eyes for half a minute.

"It was over the roofs and through the window for me. You were sleeping."

Hit With a Sandbag.

ing so nicely I thought I wouldn't wake you up. What are you going to do with me?"

"Nothing."

"But I'm caught with the goods on!"

"Looks like it, but when the ice man, the coal man, the tailor, the grocer, the dry-goods man and the shoemaker are grafting on me why should I make an example of you? The other day some one stuck me with a bogus half-dollar. Did I throw it into the ash can? No, ma'am! I went half a mile out of my way to buy cigarettes and work that coin off on the tobaccoist. I'm what they call an honest man, and yet I did that."

"Then it ain't the coop for me," asked the girl.

"Not at all. That would simply be one more person behind the bars, and what would that amount to? I'm not even going to ask you to be good. To get into that window you must have incurred a big risk. I shall let you out by the door. If my landlady sees you she will raise a great howl because I let you go, but the other day I left a dollar on the rug to test her honesty and she pocketed it."

"Would you mind if I fell in love with you?" asked the girl after a long silence. "My name is Janet, and I have never met a man like you. We can't get married, of course, but I should like to be in love to see how it seems."

"Then go right ahead. You are entitled to your romance as much as any other woman."

"Thanks. I'm sorry I was going to rob you."

"Not at all. Do you find any of the trusts apologizing?"

"I most think I will give up stealing."

"Might think it over, but don't act on impulse. That is, don't give up stealing and turn to something worse, as many reformers have done. Tell you what you might do, though, to make the old town assume a more artistic look. You might wash your face and comb your hair and sew up some of the rents in your wardrobe. And now I think I will bow you out."

As he held the door open for her to pass out she was smooching back her tangled hair and showing more shame than when caught plundering. The rebuke had hurt.

Almost every morning Mr. Manton had a stroll. During an evening he sometimes sauntered through the tenement streets. On a certain evening as he went on a stroll, he came to the back of the lot with a row of and went down. When he recovered consciousness he was in a bare room, hands and feet tied, and a couple of hard-looking men waiting for the event. They had gone through him, but that was a mere trifle. They wanted five thousand dollars to give him his liberty. Mr. Manton didn't rage. It was a straight business proposition. Only that day he had read of thirteen members of a state legislature being arrested for offering to sell themselves. Was this crime worse? He didn't charge that it was. He simply refused to buy himself at the sum named.

The kidnappers were not cruel men. They simply wanted their money. They fed their captive and waited with what patience they could. And then one night came Janet. She entered by the skylight, but her hands and face were clean and her hair brushed. She cast the captive loose and then said:

"I ain't stole a thing since that day."

"That's pretty fair," replied Mr. Manton.

"And don't you think I look nicer?"

"You surely do."

"It's because you let me fall in love with you. I want to please, you know. An uncle of mine is in this job. Going to bring the cops down on him when you get out?"

"Not at all, young woman. Two weeks ago a real estate man who is called eminently respectable came near beating me out of twenty thousand dollars. Why should I blame a couple of men not so eminently respectable for trying to do me out of a quarter of that sum?"

"I guess you'll be glad to hear I've got a place in a box factory at four dollars a week?"

"Yes, that's good. Most all thieves, robbers and burglars admit there's no profit in their trade."

"You rather be loved by a factory girl than by a thief, I know. I'm thinking of you most all the time. Well, we've got to shin up the rope and make over the roofs."

Fifteen minutes later Mr. Manton was on the street and walking homeward. He met several patrolmen and passed two police stations, but he had nothing to say. Janet's uncle and his pal had tried to extort money from him, which is a prison offense. He passed hundreds of buildings whose owners were squeezing the tenants down to the last cent to pile up their own profits. Why not a law to punish them?

Two weeks later the bachelor received a scrawl on a postal card which read:

"I guess you'll be glad to hear my wages have riz to five dollars a week. Janet."

Yes; he was glad. It was three months before another card came. It read:

"My wages has riz to six dollars a week and I have a bow, but I'm loving you still."

Then a year passed, and a third card announced a "riz" to eight dollars and "more love" and four months later the climax:

"I am now the 4 lady, and have got married to Tony Griggs, but he says I may still love you. Respectably, yours, Janet."

"And if I had preached reform to her where would she have been!" asked the bachelor of himself as he laid down the postal. "Seems to me it's just about as well to let things work out by themselves!"

MARTHA BERRY'S GREAT WORK

"Sunday Lady of 'Possum Trot" is Educating Poor Whites of Georgia Mountains.

Until very recently, the work of education carried on among the poor whites of the mountain country and in the piney districts of such states as North Carolina and Georgia showed greater zeal and self-sacrifice on the part of the teachers than permanent improvement of the instructed. It remained for a southern woman, Miss Martha Berry, to meet the situation with a determination to conquer its worst difficulties.

It all began with a Sunday school class in a little hut in the Georgia mountains. After a time she decided to establish a working school for the children. This was the beginning of the Berry school, which started in 1902 with eighty acres of ground and one log hut, but which now boasts several dormitories, a recitation hall, and a dairy.

She started it with five small boys in an oak grove near 'Possum Trot road. Each boy did two hours of work each day, digging stumps and chopping wood. She afterward taught them to wash dishes, clean lamps and care for their rooms. Miss Berry herself did the cooking.

As the school began to become known in the little community, where there are but few schools in which pupils learn to read and write, it attracted boys and girls from miles around. The first year there were 18; there are now 200.

To this day the boys do all the work of the institution. There are no servants. At the same time these children are receiving a sound high school education.

Miss Berry is known for miles around by the affectionate title of "The Sunday Lady of 'Possum Trot."—Metropolitan Magazine.

D:ET OF THE TEETOTALER

He Tells What He Ate and Drank During Day of Golf and Business.

"I was just recalling what I had taken in the way of refreshment to-day," said a teetotaler to his wife when he came home to dinner on one of the hottest days, "and it makes me astonished that there are not more cases of upset stomachs."

"You know I got up early and went up to play golf. Well, for breakfast I had a lamb chop, cereal, coffee, toast and a couple of bananas."

"After I'd played the six 'hill' holes I had a drink of ice water, and after playing the fifteenth hole we repaired to the shanty of the flagman on the railroad and had one of his lemonades, which he makes for the thirsty golfers and through which trade he probably makes more than his wages amount to."

"After we'd finished I had a dish of ice cream and two large glasses of excellent milk. Then I took a shower bath, dressed and went downtown, tarrying for a pineapple ice cream soda and a glass of ice water."

"For lunch at my usual downtown restaurant I took a lettuce and tomato sandwich, iced tea, a good sized section of watermelon and a piece of coconut pie. About fifteen minutes after four o'clock I took an egg chocolate at a soda fountain."

"And here I am, ready for dinner, and not aware of any ill effects from the variety of foods and drinks I've taken."

When I took the pills and since taking them I have gotten entirely rid of all my kidney trouble and am as sound as ever." Ed. D. Heckerman.

Use of Checks in France.

The governor of the Banque de France has just sent to the director of the departmental branch offices a circular instructing them about the use of crossed checks. The Temps in publishing these instructions points out the advantage of the English method of employing checks and then shows how the French system of making payments immobilizes capital unproductively in purse, drawer or bank, whereas these sums converted into checks would be profitable not only to their owner but also for the bank which employs them.

While the Bank of France has to face a bank note circulation of 5,000,000,000 francs and the monetary stock is 211 francs 75 centimes per head of the contributions, England with a greater amount of business has a bank note circulation of 698,000,000 francs and a monetary stock of 84 francs 58 centimes.

A MENACE TO OIL SHIPS.

The Deadly Vapor That Stays After the Petroleum Is Gone.

The explosion of vessels carrying petroleum frequently occurs, and this is generally caused not by the cargoes of oil which they contain, but by the inflammable vapor which is left behind after the huge tanks of the ships have been emptied.

It is difficult to remove all the oil that adheres to the sides of the tank, and the evaporation of the oil film left in them after they have been pumped out takes place with great rapidity. Moreover, the vapor thus formed mingles readily with the air and is capable of rendering more than 2,000 times its own volume of the former inflammable. A spark may thus cause a fearful explosion in the hold of a ship that is apparently empty.

A film of petroleum spreading over the surface of the water has been known to produce enough of this volatile and dangerous vapor, to cause a conflagration, by which a number of ships lying in a harbor have been suddenly enwrapped in roaring flames as if by a stroke of magic.

In some parts of the world, as at Baku, the center of the Russian petroleum trade, a film of oil continually covers the water for a considerable distance from shore, and warnings of the danger there have more than once been given.—Exchange.

HUMAN BOATS.

Swimmers Who Used to Rig Themselves With Sails.

When you throw a piece of wood into the water and watch how nicely it floats, has it never occurred to you to make yourself into a boat and to go floating about as easily and coolly as a real boat does?

This may sound very queer, but to one who has confidence in himself it is quite practicable, as was proved many years ago by a Dr. Bedale of Manchester. This gentleman, a noted long distance swimmer, was often to be seen floating about the river Mersey for hours at a time. He used to fasten a strong belt round his waist and attach to it a light mast and sail, which he could furl or unfurl as he lay comfortably on his back, and no doubt it was very enjoyable.

This was carried a step further by another noted swimmer, Captain Boyton, who used to think nothing of sailing up and down the English channel clad in dress inflated with air and with a sail fixed to his feet. Once, indeed, he actually crossed the channel from Dover to Calais, but on this occasion he used a paddle with which to steer himself.—Pearson's Weekly.

Men For All Jobs.

Is there a single position that nobody will take? Not so long since the position of public executioner fell vacant, but in spite of the grim occupation there were a very considerable number of applicants. Prison warders suffer from no blank spaces in their forces, and there is always a sufficient supply of recruits to meet any demand.

Work in the sewers is not nearly so bad as it is imagined to be; but, however unpalatable the tasks, there are always beginners ready for employment. Scavengers we can always get, and each lowly but necessary calling is well filled.

Turning to dangerous avocations, there is no shortage of divers or steepjackers. Dynamite and gunpowder mills do not have to seek far for hands.

Is there a single job carrying some sort of remuneration for which there are no applicants?—London Answers.

Durability of Steel.

It has been shown that nearly all the failures of steel occur very early in its history. If a plate or bar of mild steel lasts for a year in service it may be trusted to last for many years. The most injurious thing is continual bending backward and forward, as in what is called the "panting" of a boiler end. As one authority puts it, steel has a somewhat "tumultuous youth," but "in middle age it is trustworthy and in old age beyond reproach." In regard to corrosion there is difference of opinion, some holding that steel corrodes more readily than iron.

Too Late to Change.

"A man can no more change his reputation than he can change his face or his arms," said a senator at a banquet.

"There was once a wicked old millionaire, who took his pastor aside and said:

"I'm going to retire, Dr. Thirdly. I'm going to devote the remainder of my life to doing good."

"Dr. Thirdly, an outspoken man, retorted:

"Do you mean John H. Good, the wealthy farmer, or young Sam Good, the Socialist millionaire?"—Exchange.

Spoke From Experience.

Willie Good—Pa, our teacher says that "collect" and "congregate" mean the same thing. Rev. Mr. Good—Well, you tell your teacher, my boy, that you have information that there is considerable difference between a congregation and a collection.—Liverpool Mercury.

A Monumental Majority.

If one could get the vote of those who feel worse the day after a holiday than they did the day before he probably could be elected.—Aitchison Globe.

Men grumble because God puts thorns on roses. Would it not be better to thank God that He has put roses on thorns?—Anon.

COSTA RICAN IS DIGNIFIED

He Loves Pomp and Ceremony and His Formal Banquets Are Distressingly Solemn.

"The Costa Rican loves pomp and ceremony. He plays with diplomacy, and from force of habit strikes a threatening attitude toward the head of the government, whoever he may be, but never carries it so far as to provoke a revolution, as is done in the sister republics.

"He is a perfect picture of the posing hero in the comic opera, never yet having been conquered by his enemy, but always on guard," writes a woman correspondent of Health Culture. "The old Spanish hidalgoes who warred with the Central American states did not consider the country around San Jose (reached then by a bridge path over the mountains) worth fighting for.

"So they left the natives in possession and the consequence is that the peon, or barefooted native, driving his yoke or diminutive oxen, is nobody's slave. He owns his mule and cart, his little patio of land and farm-house. The tax gatherer has no place there, therefore when you meet him reincarnated as the dignified merchant he is a most self-respecting citizen.

"A dinner of fifty covers, with three kinds of wine, was tendered a foreign diplomat during our stay at the Hotel Imperial. When they were all seated and the dinner well on we gained a coign of vantage where we were not seen, and I aver that a woman's suffrage luncheon in New York city was a hilarious affair in comparison to it. Yet nearly every man present had been educated in Europe.

"At Christmas time, during the ten days of fete, they enter heartily into the spirit of the carnival, and then fold themselves away for the rest of the year."

WHEN CARVING WAS AN ART

In Old Days the Slicing Was Suited to the Importance of the Guest.

Carving was once a serious thing. The sixteenth century carver was a professional. He had to make the joint fit the guest. The size of his slices was the thing. Then he had to know his guests and cut accordingly.

A lord, for instance, at the table, and a pike was dished up whole. Smaller fry, and the pike came on in slices. The same procedure with pig. The rank of the diners decided whether it should appear at table in gold leaf or naked, whole or sliced. With bread, too, there was a difference.

New or three days old baked was at the discretion of the carver as he sized up the visitors. And as for the apportioning of the tidbits according to precedence there was no end. The old-time carver in fact was born and then made.

The eighteenth century was the day of the carver-master. He taught hostesses the art. Lady Mary Montagu, for instance, took three lessons a week "that she might be perfect on her father's public days, when, in order to perform her functions without interruptions, she was forced to eat her own dinner alone an hour or two beforehand."

The hostess carved while the host "pushed the bottle." She did more. She urged the guests to eat more and more, and woe to her if she neglected a guest. The diner who was forced to help himself to a slice of anything nearly choked. These diners of the eighteenth century liked being pressed. And the hostess welcomed the end of the feast.—London Chronicle.

For Those Who Hear Not.

The haliboy had fairly split his throat showing directions to deaf persons who had called to see Mr. Schwartz. Mr. Schwartz lived in the fourth floor rear, right-hand apartment, through the long hall and up the back stairs. It took a good deal of shouting to make some folks understand that.

"I never saw so many deaf people in my life," said the boy. "What on earth are they all running up to Schwartz's for?"

"Mr. Schwartz has advertised a deaf man's phonograph for sale," said a neighbor. "He is very hard of hearing. The phonograph was made especially for him. It has an unusually loud tone. Nobody but the hard-of-hearing can live with such entertainment. Mr. Schwartz to save trouble, has advertised for a deaf purchaser."
